YOUR HOME BASE:

Tucked between the vast Pacific and immense Lake Nicaragua, this 2700-acre property has the distinction of being one of the only isthmuses on the entire Pacific Ocean. An isthmus is defined as a strip of land that is bordered on both sides by water, yet connected on each end by land. This rare geographical phenomenon gives the property nearly constant breezes.

These breezes are an enjoyment all their own, but also create some of the world's most vertical waves, providing both visual drama as well as world-class surfing.

Only 20% of the land here has been developed for recreational and residential use. Your private home sits near the sea edge, not far from two pristine beaches and a friendly taquería for an easy breezy lunch.

Day 1 – Tuesday, February 20 – Transfer to the Ranch (D)

Today, the group arrives at 14:30 in Liberia, Costa Rica. You will transfer together across the border to Nicaragua and settle into your beachside home. Tonight, your private chef will whip up a memorable welcome dinner and get the party started!
